Presented by Dickson Thom DDS ND

Teleconference Recorded May 4, 2009

An increasing number of patients with gastro-intestinal problems are diagnosed with IBS because no physical findings are present. Many of these patients are also being diagnosed with gluten enteropathy. Crohn's disease and ulcerative colitis are debilitating conditions that are also on the rise. Learn about these conditions, and gain a stronger understanding on how to approach diagnosis management using diet, exercise, nutraceuticals and drainage remedies. Ascertain proper diagnostic criteria, laboratory test, and typical presentation. Discover treatment concepts and protocols for these conditions.
