

Autism and ADHD: An Holistic Approach to Complex Syndromes

Presented by Robert Abell ND LAc

Wednesday, April 4, 2012

5:00 PM – 6:30 PM PST | 8:00 PM – 9:30 PM EST

Autism and ADHD are complex conditions that have reached epidemic proportions that conventional medicine struggles to treat. A decade ago, the American Academy of Pediatrics estimated the autism rate among American children to be 1 in 2,500. Today, the CDC places the rate at 1 in 166. Additionally, one in six children is now diagnosed with a related neurological disorder. Learn how the role of drainage can be used to treat these neuro-developmental disorders. Dr. Abell will provide direction and share from his many years of clinical experience using drainage, nutraceutical and other biotherapeutics in restoring patient health and well-being.
