Many dermatological conditions are caused by underlying medical disorders and diseases. Our skin has many functions including gathering sensory information from the environment and playing an active role in the immune system, protecting us from disease. The skin is an ever-changing organ that primarily functions as a protective barrier that interfaces with the environment. It is particularly vulnerable to growths, rashes, discolorations, cysts, infections and other disorders.

Skin disorders often present some of the most challenging medical conditions in clinical practice. A treatment plan that includes Biotherapeutic Drainage™ is the most elegant and effective way to resolve all skin conditions; not simply suppress them.
