Presented by:
Robert Abell ND LAC

By incorporating the theories of Miasms, Temperaments and Constitutions (MTC), you will learn how to use these assessment tools to treat acute and chronic pathologies and why the importance of "physiology prevails over pathology" is essential to improving health and effecting positive change in the lives of your patients. Dr. Abell will provide in-depth instruction and information into each of these principles enabling you to return to your clinic immediately with the knowledge to recognize the key differences in each Miasm, Temperament and Constitution, as well as formulate treatment plans for effective case management.

Miasms

Dr. Samuel Hahnemann first introduced the theory of Miasms in 1822 to support the practitioner in understanding how to successfully detoxify a patient and to facilitate a return to normal physiology through assessment of Reactional modes. Miasms are an energetic concept that can only be expressed through Temperaments and are inherited or acquired through genetic material and from the outside world.

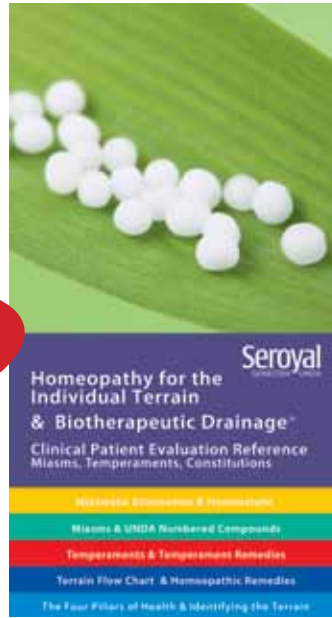

Temperaments

Understanding Temperaments will enable practitioners to truly grasp the concept of Homeopathy and its application to the modern patient. This is expressed in how a patient interprets, functions and interacts in the present with the outside world. Temperament is based on psychology, morphology and biology and the ancient Greek theory of the Four Biles: Sanguine, Biliary, Lymphatic and Nervous.
