CONTINUING EDUCATION TO ENHANCE YOUR PRACTICE

NEW Lymphatic Health: Key to Resiliency

1 Day Intensive

Presented by Verna Hunt BSc DC ND

Toronto, ON

Sunday, February 28, 2010

The lymphatic system is often an overlooked emunctory*. This seminar will review: the key clinical points about lymphatic anatomy and physiology; how to optimize lymphatic function; and how to manage the lymphatic system during an immune challenge for various ages and types of symptoms. Specific protocols on how to deal with various types of toxins and levels of severity of the imbedding of the toxins will be discussed. Clinical examples of how the lymph can be involved in case presentations and also in cases where the lymph is often not considered will be given. Please wear comfortable loose clothing as manual training techniques to unlock the lymph system will be demonstrated and taught on seminar participants.

This key practical knowledge will assist the practitioner with the urgent care that manifests when the lymphatic system is not at optimal functioning.

Emunctory can be defined as a part or organ of the body that functions in carrying off waste products.*
